Hi Richard,

Further to our conversation earlier, I have updated the crime report with your remarks and the decision you have come to that you will block her email address for the time being. As I said before, if you start to feel threatened or in immediate danger, please do not hesitate to call 999. Alternatively, if you change your mind and would like to take police action against Fiona, call 101 or attend your nearest police station front office to make a report of harassment. We can then begin to consider arresting her.

I would also advise you to let the Hawley Arms know that Fiona has been in contact with you again. As the first instance harassment warning letter was issued against her with them shown as the victim, they might be in a better place to take positive action against her on your behalf. I will speak to the officers at Camden and update them too.

If you would like to discuss this further, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Regards,

Elizabeth

Hi Elizabeth,

Hope you are well!

I am still getting emails in abundance from Fiona Harvey. It has been going on for a couple of weeks but work has been mad, so I just chuck them in a separate folder and have only now got round to emailing you. I should have emailed sooner.

Would you be able to advise the correct course of action? I can just block the email address. I am sure she does not know where I live and it could be the end of it that way. Of course the worry is she goes to greater lengths to track me down if I do that, but I think perhaps cross that bridge if we come to it?

I have pasted in a couple of emails below for your reference.

King regards,

Richard Gadd
